

LOCAL STARS IN AMATEUR CLASSIC

Philadelphia's Best Golfers Will Drive Off in National Tourney at Brookline
SARAZEN'S GREAT VICTORY

Saturday is the last day for entrants in the national amateur golf championship at Brookline, Mass., to get their names in.

Philadelphia's hopes have not let the matter ride until the last minute, and most of them are all set for the New England trip early in September. There are some, of course, who will not get on the band-wagon until they are close to the dead line; but whatever happens our fair city will be strongly represented.

The younger generation has come rapidly to the fore in the last twelve months. Men like Marcus Greer and Johnny Boodle, of Lanserch; Charley Doepf, the Lion Et champion, and others have been playing brilliant, dashing golf, and with the sweep of confidence that their recent work has engendered will make trouble for the best that other cities can send to Brookline.

The Merion Cricket Club will have the largest delegation to make a bid for the amateur title. Max Marston, the Pennsylvania State champion, Eddie Driggs, ex-Princeton football star, who has been making a great bid for fame on the links; Dr. John Robb, Fitz Sargent and William T. West will all go.

Pine Valley has two excellent representatives in R. E. Sanson and R. S. Kampmann. Zimmer Platt, of Whitehorse Valley, is sure to play, and if the weather is reasonably cool, Woodie Platt will also be on deck.

Platt has always given a brilliant account of himself in the amateur tilt, though he never quite managed to breeze through strongly enough to win the crown.

Two years ago he eliminated Dave Herron, then national champion, by a brilliant display of golf over the engineers' course at Roslyn, Pa. He won the decision two up on the thirty-seventh green when he chipped a shot from the long dead grass dead to the pin.

Platt was sunstruck at Pine Valley during the interclub championships last month, and if the weather is hot he will not be permitted to participate.

Whitemarsh also has Norman Maxwell and Fred Knight eligible for the amateur classic, though up until yesterday they had not turned in their names to Francis Farmer.

Other eligibles from this district are Eddie Clary, of Forest View; George Hoffman, of Bala; Paul Tewksbury, of Aronimink; Charley Recker, of Cedarbrook; and Irving Meigs, of Brookside Stiff Competition.

No Philadelphia has ever succeeded in winning the amateur title, and the chances of this year—in spite of the class representing this district—is slim, indeed. The champions of the last eight years, Francis Farmer, Bob Gannan, Chick Evans, Dave Herron and Joe Guilford; the scintillating British stars, Bobby Jones and the titleholders from every district in the United States will be there.

John Boodle, of the famous golfing family, has been making himself prominent in the last few months. Only the other day he shot a 68 at Lanserch, while several weeks ago his clubmate, Marcus Greer, did a brilliant 67.

Both these lads are "dark horses," who may turn as unexpected a trick as Francis Farmer did in the open of 1913, while Charley Doepf, who didn't know a maulie from a slice a few years ago, is also a dangerous competitor. Driggs and Zimmer Platt also can be numbered among the younger set that has been making golfing history in the year of grace 1922.

But mainly what Philadelphia hopes are absorbing the recent triumphant atmosphere these days really brings on the veteran Marston and Woodie Platt. They are the tried and true battles of the district, now hardened in the competitive grind. More varied than in the qualifying round last year and should do as well at Brookline.

History Repeats Itself

Just a year ago the subtle looks of Gene Sarazen were flaunted in triumph over the thrashing scalp of old Jack Hutchinson, and 9 in the final round of the 1921 Amateur tournament over the links of the DuPont Country Club.

Yesterday he again frowled Jack in a match of vital interest to both. The victor would advance into the semi-final round of the same classic now being played at Oakmont, the vanquished would be automatically eliminated.

The match was a brilliant one, and by winning it in a manner that stamped him as one of the most conspicuous golfers in the world Sarazen has lifted himself almost to the peak of golfing achievements in the United States.

The victory is a popular one, for youth always has the sympathy of the world when it comes to a tussle with age and experience.

The Champion Caddies

Yesterday the Lanserch caddies delighted their craft by winning the championship of the city by carrying all of their seven matches with the big winners from St. Davids. Not a single Lanserch boy failed to break 200, and the best card of the day was that of Clayton Gaskill, who has a 75 to his credit.

J. Lyons turned in a 70 and Ted Boodle, the kid brother of Johnny, had an 82.

Next week the Lanserch tournament with the boys from the Cricket Club will decide the championship of Philadelphia.
